SLAP

OUCH!

in this
man's life...

that never
before,

I've come
to learn
recently,

ALRIGHT.

SIGH—

YOU—I

has he ever
been scolded
by his parents

HE—I

BEING
SO IR-RESPON-SIBLE—I

SORRY,

ABOUT
THIS...?

EH?!

NOW
TAKE OUT
THE TRASH
EVERY DAY...

AND WASH
THE DISHES...

DON'T ADD NEW THINGS!

AND CLEAN
THE BATH...

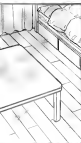

ISN'T THIS
JUST LIKE SEX?

He dusts
whenever
he feels like it.

Nowadays, Yoshino takes
the initiative in
cleaning up about
one in five times.

DON'T GET AHEAD OF YOURSELF.

The
third
time.

Yoshino Uji
always knew that he was born with
a silver spoon in his mouth.

His father always said he was "busy," but looking back on it, he was probably just out having fun.

His father got rich doing real estate deals on land he inherited from his own father. He was never home on weekends.

But one day, maybe because of loneliness, or her pride as a woman, she started going out more too.

When Yoshino was little, his mother doted on him quite a bit.

He grew up like a lonely prince, as if being left alone was the most normal thing in the world.

Left alone in a house without his father or mother,

YOU SURE
WENT IT GOOD

Most things fell
into his lap
without any real effort.

If there was something he
wanted, all he had to do was
say the word.

Popular snacks,
new games,
money, women.

He had the looks,
a healthy body,
and his future all
laid out for him.

Maybe he was right. Maybe he was better off
than most.

There was nothing in his life that could be called unfortunate.

IT'S LIKE
YOU'RE GOING
